Campo Urbano is a 7-acre ranch located on the West side of Tucson, Arizona.

We have several programs at the ranch to serve Pima County. We provide employment for adults with disabilities. By providing hands on experience in a variety of green vocations, participants develop vocational skills beneficial to increasing opportunities for successful community based employment. We offer most of the Campo del Oeste programs at the ranch, including youth groups, nature-based experiential therapy, and equine assisted learning.

Working at Campo Urbano includes managing the land in a way that allows the native flora and fauna to thrive. Most animal habitats are left undisturbed and the ranch agenda is altered to suit the needs of the land and wildlife.

When you visit, you will notice Campo Urbano's commitment to reducing waste and reusing repurposing resources and materials.

Campo Urbano's 7-acres are home to a variety of hands-on experimental projects based around the cultivation of local ecosystems and engaging the lives of its participants. Campo Urbano's projects stress the importance of self-awareness through community, equine, and nature-based practices. We provide experience in green vocations to adults with developmental disabilities and outdoor education to low-income youth, while constantly supporting the property's animals and wildlife.

Campo Urbano powers one of the largest buildings on the property with solar panels that recycle its energy through a portion of the property. We are in the process of becoming 100% solar!

2

One of the largest constructions in the last few years was the development of the ranch's new green house. It houses many of the ranch's vegetables in a controlled environment.

3

Our facilities are built to reuse grey water directly from our plumbing to awaiting trees and gardens located directly outside the buildings.

4

The ranch has 3 working water sisterns to harvest rainwater which will later be used to nurish our gardens.

5

One of the more famous aspects of the ranch is our outdoor-worm pit. Kept in a cool and damp place, we compost a portion of our food and plant waste here for the worms to snack on.

6

Almost everything gets composted at the ranch, but most of all is our animal waste which, after a long process of decomposition in the sun, gets reused in our garden beds, green house and adobe.

7

After completing most of the gardens the extra dirt is used to create adobe bricks in the sun. Many of the new structures you can see around the property are made from this very process, including our new outdoor oven!

8

In 2008, we installed 3 raised-garden beds which we use to teach our youth participants how to grow and harvest seasonal vegetables.

9

At the ranch we harvest eggs from our chickens and milk from our goats to be sold later at local farmer's markets.

10

Our animals are one of the most important aspects of our program: Campo Urbano is home to a variety of horses, chickens, goats, tortises, and more.

We not only implement sustainable practices at Campo Urbano, we also honor the wildlife and wilderness by keeping most of the property as native desert. One of the most important things we can do as an environmentally-conscious program is to allow the present ecosystem to function by its own means.
